ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT OF BROADDUS INSTITUTE

Held in the First Baptist Church Wednesday Morning Was Splendid and Propitious. Eight Graduates Were Presented With Diplomas.

Programme Was Excellent and Students Acquitted Themselves Admirably—Gold Prizes Were Awarded—Prof. Swartz Presented With Hand-some Gifts from Students, Teachers and Board.

The tenth annual commencement exercises of Broadbuddus Classical and Scientific Institute held in the First Baptist church Wednesday morning were both brilliant and auspicious. A large audience assembled at the church to witness the exercises. The program rendered was an excellent and very entertaining one. The essays were extraordinarily good and the musical numbers both vocal and instrumental were fine.

The exercises began at ten o'clock when divine blessing was invoked by Rev. L. B. Moore, of Philippi. Misses Mabel Shinn, Lena Bartlett, Eva Goddard and Flora Harvey rendered "Zausa" (Herold) upon two pianos in a charming manner, showing unusual skill. The number was heartily appreciated by the audience.

"Music" was the subject of the essay delivered by Miss Amelia Hursey Vance. It was rendered in a graceful and happy manner and it was evidenced that she was well informed upon the subject. She told of the infinite power of music over the mind and gave several great men's definitions of it. In the course of the essay she touched upon the music of savages and the music of Russia, Scotland, Ireland, France, Spain, Germany, Italy and of our own nation. The tradition of music and the history of the art in a brief manner from the earliest ages to the present time were included in the theme.

De Koub-kil's "Reveil de Lion" was rendered upon the piano by Miss Eva May Goff. It was rendered artistically and was fully appreciated by her auditors.

The essay of Miss Lucy Abigail Robinson was a very interesting one. It was entitled "The South," and it contained an excellent description of the Southland, its industrial, commercial and political conditions in ante-bellum times and in the present. She contrasted the conditions of the north and south in Colonial times, the causes which led up to the Civil War and told what the Southland was today and forecast its inevitable brilliant future. It was an able and well delivered essay.

Miss Eunice Stealey told of the circumstances which inspired composers to create the simple ballads with which we are most familiar in her essay entitled "Stories of Well Known Songs." The circumstances which inspired the composition of "Home, Sweet Home," "Robin-Adair," "Annie Laurie," and the "Old Oaken Bucket," were described. The essay was an excellent one and was rendered with ease, dignity and power of expression.

Miss Gussie Love has a sweet and cultured voice and her solo "Ave Maria" (Bach-Bonno) was thoroughly enjoyed. "Sorrow is Vain and Despondency is Sinful" was the subject of an excellent essay by Miss Alta Viola Smith. Optimism and pessimism were explained, and set forth in a clear light by the speaker. She explained that our lives were made up of either the good or bad elements and that which element was brought forth depended upon ourselves. The destructiveness of the pessimistic life and the benefits of the optimistic life were contrasted so that an unanswerable and concise argument was brought forth. Miss Smith rendered her essay in a highly creditable manner. Her diction and the choice diction of the composition made her essay an excellent one.

John Cornelius Southern brought forth the necessity and benefits of professional education to the student in an oration upon the influence of a Professions. He said there is too much ignorance today and not enough education. The great men of the world are the men who have had a thorough educational training. He said that it was better to have a smattering and inadequate knowledge of half a dozen. "The young man who prepares himself for a thorough professional education in these
